1 Introduction

This document provides the detailed description of the external code sets and values to be used in the Bank Transaction Code structure.

2 Document structure

Chapter 3 is composed of several sections:

Section 1: This section provides the overview of the approved structure of the Bank Transaction Code set, with detailed information on the scope and structure of the domains.

Section 2 to 5: Per domain there is one dedicated section. Each section contains:

- The families and sub-families of the corresponding domain, including the relevant definition for the families and sub-families.

Chapter 4 provides a summary of the domains, families and sub-families, with the codes to be applied.

3 External Code Sets

3.1 Section 1: Bank Transaction Code scope and high level structure

3.1.1 Scope of the Bank Transaction Code

The scope of the Bank Transaction Code is to deliver a harmonised set of codes, which should be applied in bank-to-customer cash account reporting information. The bank transaction code information allows the account servicer to correctly report a transaction, which in its turn will help account owners to perform their cash management and reconciliation operations.

The Bank Transaction Code proposes a harmonised, global alternative for the different domestic bank transaction code sets that exist. The lack of such a harmonised set led to a misuse and misinterpretation of the domestic codes.

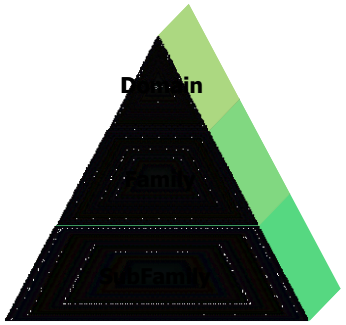

The requirements that have been expressly identified as part of the scope of the Bank Transaction Code are the following:

- All transactions resulting in a cash movement on the customer's account should be taken into account;
- Usage of national bank transaction code sets should be catered for initially in order to ease the migration from the existing sets towards the harmonised bank transaction code set.
- The existing domestic bank transaction code sets need to migrate towards the standardised set for consistency and interoperability.
- Clear definitions of the bank transaction codes are required so that the same code is always used in the same context and two codes may not be used for the same transaction.
- The bank transaction code is used to allow the reconciliation between the reason of the cash movement and the sub-ledger and/or the routing of the information to the adequate processing system at the customer side.

3.1.2 The Bank Transaction Code component

The structure of the Bank Transaction Code component includes the following 3 levels:

- Domain: Highest definition level to identify the sub-ledger. The domain defines the business area of the underlying transaction (e.g., payments, securities...).
  This layer is a specific ISO 20022 external code set (defined as the ExternalBankTransactionDomain1Code).
- Family: Medium definition level: e.g. type of payments: credit transfer, direct debit.
  This layer is a specific ISO 20022 external code set (defined as the ExternalBankTransactionFamily1Code).
- Sub-family: Lowest definition level: e.g. type of cheques: drafts, etc
  This layer is a specific ISO 20022 external code set (defined as the ExternalBankTransactionSubFamily1Code).

As shown below, it is possible to specify both a proprietary code and a standard code, in a structured format. The structured component provides for three mandatory levels. The first level is the Domain of the Bank Transaction Code. The Domain must be further extended with the Family and Sub-Family.

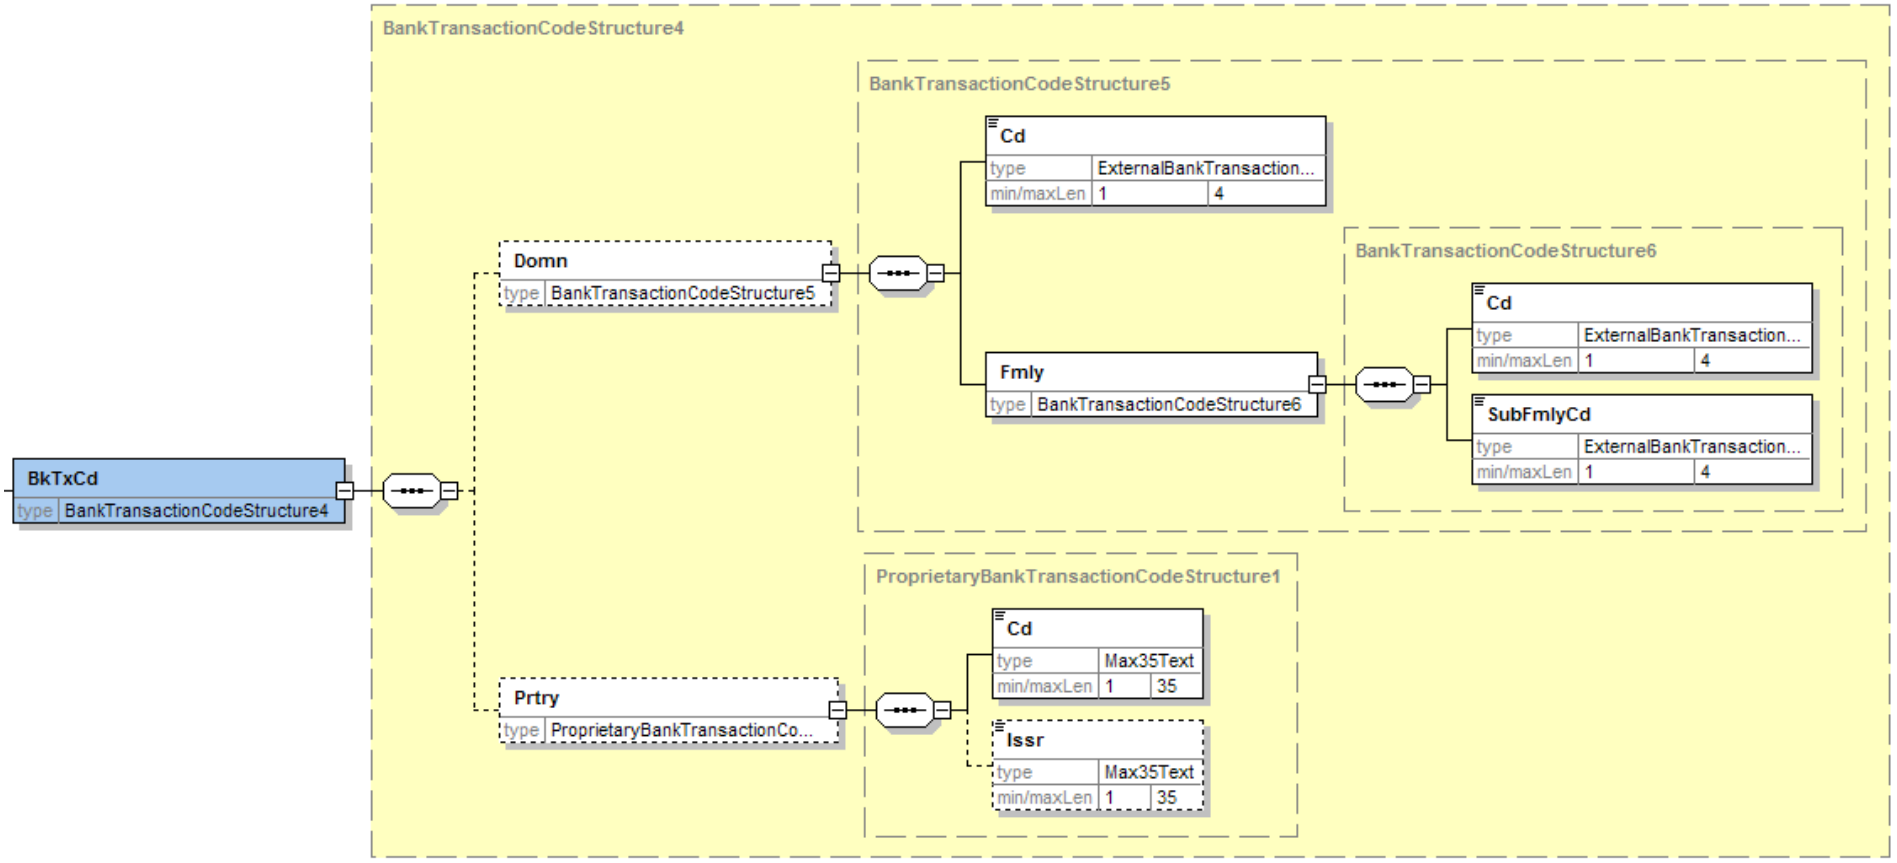

The values/codes for the Domain/Family/Sub-Family are the subject of this document and are registered as external ISO 20022 code sets.

Ref.	Structure Element	XML Tag	Multipicity	Data Type	Definition
1.0	BankTransactionCode	<BkTxCd>	[1..1]		Set of elements to fully identify the type of underlying transaction resulting in an entry.
1.1	Domain	<Domn>	[0..1]		Specifies the domain, the family and the sub-family of the bank transaction code, in a structured and hierarchical format. Usage: If a specific family or sub-family code cannot be provided, the generic family code defined for the domain or the generic sub-family code defined for the family should be provided.
1.1.1	Code	<Cd>	[1..1]	ExternalBankTransactionDomain1Code (4 chars max)	Specifies the business area of the underlying transaction.
1.1.2	Family	<Fmly>	[1..1]		Specifies the family and the sub-family of the bank transaction code, within a specific domain, in a structured and hierarchical format.
1.1.2a	Code	<Cd>	[1..1]	ExternalBankTransactionFamily1Code (4 chars max)	Specifies the family within a domain.
1.1.2b	SubFamilyCode	<SubFmlyCd>	[1..1]	ExternalBankTransactionSubFamily1Code (4 chars max)	Specifies the sub-product family within a specific family.
1.2	Proprietary	<Prtry>	[0..1]		Proprietary identification of the bank transaction code, as defined by the issuer.
1.2.1	Code	<Cd>	[1..1]	Max35Text	Proprietary bank transaction code to identify the underlying transaction.
1.2.2	Issuer	<Issr>	[0..1]	Max35Text	Identification of the issuer of the proprietary bank transaction code.

Rules associated with the Bank Transaction Code structure:

- If Domain is absent, then Proprietary must be present.
- If Proprietary is absent, then Domain must be present

3.1.3 Proprietary component

The Proprietary component has been added to the structure to cater for two of the most important requirements:

- During a transition period, existing national bank transaction code sets can be reported through the proprietary element in the bank transaction code structure.
- The proprietary element can be used to report codes that are not defined (yet) in the registered code sets, but are candidates to be included in the registered sets.

Even though the Proprietary element is used to define the Bank Transaction Code, the structured Domain/Family/Sub-Family structure may already be completed with the information available to the sender of the message.

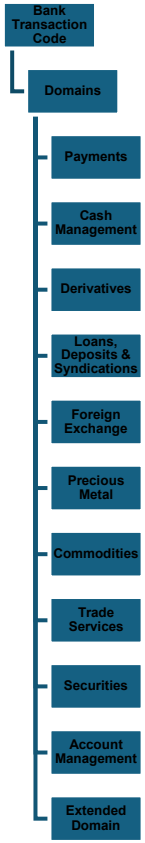

Sample of the Proprietary element usage:

3.2 Section 2: Definition of the Domains

3.2.1 Domains overview

The diagram below provides you with an overview of the Domains that have been agreed for the Bank Transaction Code. A definition for each of those Domains is provided further in this document.

3.2.2 Domains definition

The Domains are defined as follows:

Bank Transaction Code Domains
Domain Name	Definition
Payments	The Payments domain provides the bank transaction codes for all payment activities that relate to transfer of funds between parties.
Cash Management	The Cash Management domain provides the bank transaction codes for cash management activities that relate to own account management, i.e. cash concentration, zero-balancing or topping of accounts or pooling activities. The underlying objective of these techniques is the coverage of funds deficits in one area with surpluses in another.
Derivatives	The Derivatives domain provides the bank transaction codes for the derivatives related transactions, i.e. a financial instrument derived from a cash market commodity, futures contract, or other financial instrument. Derivatives can be traded on regulated exchanges as listed derivatives or over-the-counter.
Loans, Deposits & Syndications	The Loans, Deposits and Syndications domain provides the bank transaction codes of all operations that are related to loans, deposits and syndications management.
Foreign Exchange	The Foreign Exchange domain provides the bank transaction codes of all operations that are related to the foreign exchange market. Often abbreviated as FOREX.
Precious Metal	The Precious Metal domain provides the bank transaction codes of all operations that are related to a classification of metals that are considered to be rare and/or have a high economic value.
Commodities	The Commodities domain provides the bank transaction codes of all operations that are related to a commodity which might be an extraction (mining), an agricultural product (soybeans, grains, coffee, etc.), a non-precious metal, wood, or any other physical substance that investors buy or sell, usually as commodity futures contracts. They are complex, and include a wide array of instruments to manage risk through contracts for delivery of any product or service that can be characterized in an interchangeable way
Trade Services	The Trade Services domain provides the bank transaction codes related to all of the Trade Services operations that need to be reported in the statements.
Securities	The Securities domain provides the bank transaction codes for cash movements related to transactions on equities, fixed income and other securities industry related financial instruments.
Account Management	The Account Management domain provides the bank transaction codes for operations on one account. Those transactions imply cash movements related to activities between the financial institution servicing the account and the customer/owner of the account.
Extended Domain	The extended domain code is to be used whenever a specific domain has not yet been identified, or a proprietary Bank Transaction Code has not been associated with a specific domain.

3.3 Section 3: Families within Domains

3.3.1 Generic Family definition

Within each Domain, there are 4 generic Family codes defined:

Generic Domain Families
	Family	Definition

2.	Other	The "Other" family is used to cater for the Bank Transaction Code mandatory field, when the reported family does not match any of the families listed in the specified domain, but further details are available in addition to the domain code.
3.	Miscellaneous Credit Operations	Transaction is related to miscellaneous credit operations on the balance or on a specific transaction on the account.
4.	Miscellaneous Debit Operations	Transaction is related to miscellaneous debit operations on the balance or on a specific transaction on the account.
